ARGENTINA IN FULL SYMPATHY WITH US

President Irigoyen Leaves No Fire on Pursuers After Dar-Room for Doubt of Nation's Stand.

Has Risked Much to Assert Indignation at Course of Germany.

President of The United Press. (Copyright, 1918, by the United Press.) Evenos Ayres, April 13 .- "Argentine a not indifferent toward the international conflagration now raging, nor is her course or her attitude to be construed as unsympathetic or cold toward the United States. The difficulties of her position possibly are not understood fully in the United States. What our past actions have been is known, even if they sometimes have been misinterpreted. Only future developments will shape our future international policy, but no misunderstanding of past develepments should cause a prejudgment of vantage." With a sincerity and straightforwardness, carrying even greater import than his words, Hipolyto Irigoyen, President of Argentina, in an exclusive interview granted to the United Press Friday afternoon in the Rose House, Argentina's White House, belied the insinus. tions of his enemies that he is unsym pathetic toward the Allies and cold even unfriendly, to North America.

Prefacing his remarks with an appre ciation of North American journalistic efforts to develop the acquaintance be tween the United States and Argenting efforts in which the United Press is the pioneer, and volcing his pleasure that the Argentinans are recognizing, tardily, perhaps, the tremendous importance of such an acquaintance, he discussed for nearly an hour the international complications which have focured the attention of the world on Ar-

His talk was devoid of mincing of words, of hair splitting and fine shades, of meaning. On the contrary, he spoke with the directness of conviction of a statesman sure of himself and of the defensibility of his position, and palpably made no attempt to "carry water on both shoulders."

When interrogated regarding Argentina's not breaking with Germany in the face of great popular demands for a declaration of war after Germany had affronted the republic, he said: The position of a neutral is very ficult. It is not always understood belligerents, as the United States will

The misunderstanding of Argentina's position is quite evident to us, but it would not be well for the world to pre-judge Argentina's future course, except upon a full understanding of her past course and her present position.

"When she was affronted by Germany, Argentina, acting, is acquedance with international procedure, demanded an ar-slogy and reparation. When both were granted, Argentina, under the law, was unable to proceed further, regard less of individual opinions and national sentiments. When Germany made rep-aration upon our demands, our course was dictated as certainly as was that but there is no justification for doubt-ing us meanwhile."

Cannot Take Action Now.

When asked if he considered that Arnina's position parallels that of the ited States after the Suesex sinking replied in the affirmative, adding: "As the United States was stopped." from action against Germany while Germany's pledge regarding use of sub-marities had not been violated, so Ar-gentina is stopped now. preparations, the United States certainly does not mistake, and is not blind to, Argentina's sympathy and warm feeling, which we have expressed on every occasion since the United States entered the war. I am certain that Americans generally recognize that, by inviting the American fleet to visit Buenos Ayres and in many other ways where our hond of sympathy dictated, that we give proof of the genuineness and depth of our friendship for America. Policeman in Pajamas Arrests the Four Assailants Hiding Under Tree.

Lolling on a bench in their cell in the Jamaica, L. I., jail as though they had nothing more serious on their minds than the prospect of a good luncheon, four youthful soldiers from Camp Mills conlessed to Edgar R. Hazelton, Assistant District Attorney of Queens, yesterday that they had engaged in the early morning pistol fight with the police, in which a woman and four men were

The encounter, which occurred at Ful-ton street and Cherokee avenue, Hollis, Queens, just on the outskirts of Jamaics, was the sequel to a daring saloon holdup, in which the same four soldiers are said to have participated just before 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The fusiliade of shots and the cries of the injured persons aroused the neighborhood and kept it in fear and turmoil for several hours. The men under arrest are all members of Company B of the Forty-ninth United States Infantry, stationed at Camp Mills, They gave their names as Sergt. Otts Walker, 19 years old, of Milburn, Okla.; Private Harry Cohen, 20, of 534 Graham Queens, just on the outskirts of Jamaics

Private Harry Cohen, 20, of 534 Graham avenue, Brooklyn; Private Roy Spicer Smithson, 24, Mount Hope, W. Va., and Private William Bryan Harrison, 20, Centerville, Tenn. It was hard to recon-cile the appearance of the men with the vicious nature of the crime to which they confessed and the nonchalant man-ner in which they told their stories.

The prisoners were held by Magistrate Doyle without ball for a hearing Mon-day on the double charge of robbery and felonious assault. After signing their confessions they pulled their hats over their eyes and calmly went to aleap. Later in the day they were taken in automobiles to the Queens county jail in Long Island City, where they will be kept pending a joint investigation by the civil and military authorities at Camp Milis. Their confessions, according to Assistant District Attorney Hazelton, are incomplete and lacking in certain details, although all of them admit hav-ing engaged in the shooting.

At least three of the victims of the shooting are said to be in a precarious condition at St. Mary's Hospital in Jamaica. They are Mrs. Edna Contil Brush, 32 years old, of Gibson avenue, Huntington, L. I., shot in the right breast and in the back; William Busche, a switchboard operator of Hollis, L. I., shot in the left side and the left thigh, and Patrolman Henry D. C. Weber, Jamaica, shot several times in the right thigh. The others are Walter Stilwell, 39 years old, a lawyer and a boarder in Mrs. Brush's home in Huntington, shot through the right shoulder; George B. Gerard, $1 Green street, Huntington, L. L., real estate agent and tax assessor, shot in the back and right arm.

Get $180 in Holdup. Before they were sent to Camp Mills the four soldiers now under arrest had been doing pier duty in Hoboken, and it was with the automatic revolvers given to them for that purpose that they fought back their pursuers, firing at least thirty shots. They were on their way back to camp from a visit to Ho-boken yesterday morning, when, according to Assistant District Attorney Hazelton, they entered a cafe owned by Herman Beinbrink, at Fulton street and Farmer avenue, Hollis, L. I., and at the of the United States throughout the leried of her long neutrality.

It is no time now to discuss our course in the event of future affronts.

to him that they had previously decided upon Beinbrink's saloon as a likely place for a holdup and had planned the details of the robbery on the way over from Heboken. When they entered the saloon at 12:15 A. M. haif a dosen men were playing pool and the proprietor and Busche, who is a switchboard operator for the Long Island Railroad, were watching the game.

The soldiers called for soft drinks, and as the proprietor turned to serve them they whipped out their automatics and ordered every one in the room to hold up his hands. One of the men then went through the cash drawer, while another emptied the pockets of the customers who were lined up against the wall. Busche made a feeble attempt at resistance, but reconsidered when a gun was trust under his nose and he was told that he would be killed if he didn't "stick up his hands." A ring was taken "stick up his hands." A ring was taken from his finger and $14 from his pocket.

As the soldiers left the cafe the pro-prietor slammed and locked the doors and Busche ran to the telephone in an effort to call up Police Headquarters, but found that the wires had been cut. He then dashed from the saloon, and having noted the direction taken by the naving noted the direction taken by the soldiers, started in search of a policeman. About a half mile away he found Patrolmen Weber and Leo Colton, who telephoned to the Jamaica station for the reserves and then commandeered an automobile in which Gerard, Mrs. Brush. As the two police. d if he believes the unselfishness fire, the policeman firing shot for shot, umanitarianism of the United is understood and accepted in that, President Irigoyen replied:

The patroliman Weber went down, but reloaded his pistol and continued to fire at the retreating soldiers.

Policeman Collon chassed the soldiers. Policeman Colton chased the soldiers but lost track of them and then returned to help the wounded, who were taken to the hospital in another automobile.

Awakened by the shots, Police Ser-geant Charles Bruns, who is assigned to by the interview, which is practically unpresented to a Manhattan precinct, but lives in the neighborhood where the fight took place, dashed from his house in his pajamas over which he had hastly thrown his overcoat.
